1. PRESENTATION

How the magazine came about

The Journal of the Secretariat of the Permanent Review Tribunal, created by the Secretariat of the TPR, emerged for the publication of academic articles that deal with general issues of law such as regional integration, international organizations, and especially MERCOSUR law.

Topics and scope

The project has as its central objective the dissemination of MERCOSUR law and is not restricted to the law of the regional organization. Academic productions that deal with the Mercosur legal framework, such as general international law, international economic law and integration law, can integrate the project.

Languages

The languages of the magazine are the official languages of MERCOSUR: Spanish and Portuguese. Papers can also be presented in English and French.

Review system

A technical and academic Council under the double blind review modality analyzes the works presented. The members of the Council are professors, scholars and researchers of law with a notable academic background and have full freedom to criticize, review, approve and disapprove the articles presented. Your identification is reserved and the review issued is considered as if it were from the magazine.

The articles are unpublished, of scientific rigor and do not represent in any hypothesis the opinion of the TPR regarding the topics covered. Articles are subjected to a plagiarism detection program. If the program detects bibliographic citations that are not correctly referenced, the work is not published.

Regarding the form, the articles must meet the criteria and requirements established in this editorial standard. These format criteria constitute, together with the content analysis, an essential condition for its publication, and it will therefore be submitted to the Editorial Team for consideration.

The review time is approximately 6 to 10 weeks.

Free publication

The magazine is not for profit. The delivery and publication of the articles are not subject to any cost. The published content is fully available online for free.

General criteria for manuscript acceptance

The articles will be unpublished, of scientific rigor and do not represent in any hypothesis the opinion of the TPR regarding the topics addressed by the author.

The magazine reserves all legal rights to reproduce the content.

The submission of articles by the author implies authorization for publication in the Journal of the Secretariat of the Permanent Review Tribunal. This process ends with the signing of a letter of assignment of rights by the author. The submission of articles will be done exclusively through the magazine page <http://www.revistastpr.com/index.php/rstpr>.

Under no circumstances will articles be received by other means of communication.

Conflict of interest: any interest of authors, reviewers and editors that may influence the preparation or evaluation of an article must be declared for the identification of possible conflicts of interest. Once the conflict of interest is recognized, the article will be rejected.

Self-citations: the journal accepts self-citation of scientific works not greater than 30% of the total bibliographic references used for the development of the article.

Indices

RSTPR is currently member of CrossRef and WordCat. It is indexed in the following databases: Latindex, DOAJ, SciELO, Dialnet, Redib, Qualis Capes and the Web of Science.

2. SHIPPING OF ITEMS

The shipment is made through the magazine's website: <http://www.revistastpr.com/index.php/rstpr>

Steps to follow

The author must enter the following data in step 3 of the submission procedure- (Enter the submission metadata):

- 1.- Title in Portuguese and Spanish;
- 2.- Name of each author, followed by their institutional affiliation and title on the occasion of submission of the work;
- 3.- Electronic address for correspondence of article procedures, including fax, telephone.

In addition, the author must include brief curriculum vitae in the Biographical Summary section in the corresponding field of the system, not exceeding 50 words, since it is incorporated in the publication by using a call. The current institutional affiliation must also be indicated.

In case of receiving financial support, collaboration of colleagues and technicians (for example: previous work presented at events, derived from thesis or dissertation, data collection carried out in institutions other than that reported in the affiliation, and other ethically necessary dissemination events) it must be indicated in a special paragraph for this purpose. These data SHOULD NOT BE FOUND IN THE WORK BODY.

At the end of the shipment, the system assigns an identification code (Id.) to the newly uploaded article by which the author will follow the review process.

3. SHIPPING FORMAT

The article must be sent, editable, in the .doc extension; A4 sheet size, with top left margin 3 cm, bottom right 2 cm.

In the original format, the “Times New Roman” font, size 12, normal and justified style will be used. Line spacing 1.5; no space between paragraphs. The initial paragraphs at 1.25 cm. indented.

The original must contain a minimum of 15 (fifteen) pages and must not exceed 20 (twenty) pages, including the title, abstract, development, bibliographic references, charts, graphs and images, if any.

In case the article contains statistical charts or graphs, they must have a title in the body of the article in “Times New Roman”, size 10, normal style. It is requested to send them in an electronic spreadsheet file.

In case the article contains images, they must have a title in the body of the article in “Times New Roman”, size 10, normal style. You are requested to send them in an image-editing format (JPG, TIF, GIF, PNG) with a minimum height of 700 px, with a resolution of 300 dpi.

These files must be uploaded in "Step 4 Upload supplementary file" during the article submission process.

4. STRUCTURE OF THE ARTICLE

The structure of the article must contain:

Title: in the original language of the text and the corresponding translation depending on whether it is into Spanish or Portuguese, with English being incorporated into the remaining three languages.

Eg: if the original text is in Spanish, the translation must be in Portuguese, English and French.

The title should not exceed 20 words, it should reflect the main content of the work in an objective and clear way. The publishing team reserves the right to make adjustments to it.

Explanatory notes: when they correspond to the title it must be inserted at the end of the page with a call of *.

Summary: in Spanish, Portuguese, English and French, it consists of a sequence of concise and objective sentences that give a general idea of the article; and as a whole, they should not pass 250 words in each language.

Keywords: in Spanish, Portuguese, English and French, between 3 and 5 representative words of the content of the work to be placed after the abstract should be indicated, separated by commas preceded by the expression “Palabras clave / Palavras-chave / Keywords / Mots clés”.

Body of the article: it must have the following structure: INTRODUCTION, DEVELOPMENT, CONCLUSION. DEVELOPMENT can be subdivided.

The development of the article will be numbered with an Arabic number beginning the Introduction with the number 1.

Text that you want to highlight within a paragraph must be written in italics, with no bold or underlined parts anywhere.

Notes should be inserted at the end of each page, without indentation, “Times New Roman” font, size 10, with sequential numbering starting with number 1 in the body of the article. They will be for the use of explanatory notes in the text and citations-notes.

Direct dating

Direct citations that exceed 3 (three) lines must start in a new paragraph with a different margin, in “Times New Roman” 10, single spacing and must end in the right margin. Quotation marks should be removed and a blank line should be left before and after the quote.

Dating in notes

The appointment-note system will be used, inserting a number as an exponent after each appointment that forwards the note. These notes may contain citations or references to citations. A note number is used for each appointment or each group of appointments; the corresponding note may cite more than one document.

a) First date

The first citation to a document must contain the necessary elements to ensure the exact correspondence between the citation and the appropriate entry within the list of bibliographic references.

The first citation must include at least the name (s) of the authors and the full title, as they appear within the bibliographic reference followed by cited page numbers, if necessary.

If the author or authors and the title are not sufficient to differentiate the entries within the list of bibliographic references, the citation will include the supplementary elements (edition, year of publication, etc.) necessary to ensure exact correspondence with the reference.

Example:

Text:

Still, art. 21 Regulation 650/2012 assumes that each person has a habitual residence. For a subsidiary connection point - such as, for example, the factual presence - is not found in the standard. In addition, Recital 24, sentences 3 and 4, contemplates this case, mentioning that, under these circumstances, the person's nationality or the location of the situation of his main assets could be "a special factor" in the assessment of all circumstances factual. In this way, the European legislator implies that, for the purposes of Regulation 650/2012, a person without habitual residence does not exist.

Quotes in footnotes:

Em: BERNREUTHER, Jörn; FREITAG, Robert; LEIBLE, Stefan; SIPPEL, Harald; WANITZEK, Ulrike. Festschrift für Ulrich Spellenberg. 2010. p. 343, 346.

2) Second date and the following

If a document is cited multiple times, subsequent citations receive different numbers.

The second citation of a document and the following ones can be reduced to the author's name or names and to a summary title, followed by one of the following abbreviations as appropriate:

Op. Cit.: Work cited. It is used when referring to an already mentioned but not consecutive appointment and when it corresponds to different pages. The surname and name of the author / s are repeated, followed by Op. Cit. and the page number.

If the author or authors were not sufficient to differentiate the entries within the list of bibliographic references, the citation will include the title of the cited publication.

Example:

6. DRNAS DE CLEMENT, Zlata. The "environmental clause" in MERCOSUR, p. 8.
15.
16. DRNAS DE CLEMENT, Zlata. Op. cit., P. 84.

Idem.: Same as the previous reference. It is used when the current quote comes from the same work and on the same page as the immediately previous quote.

Example:

6. DRNAS DE CLEMENT, Zlata. The “environmental clause” in MERCOSUR, p. 8.

7. Idem.

Ibid.: In the same place. It is used to avoid the repetition of the previous quote in case it was a different page, but the same work cited.

6. DRNAS DE CLEMENT, Zlata. The “environmental clause” in MERCOSUR, p. 8.

7. Ibid., p. 24

Acknowledgments: if necessary, with a maximum of 20 words, at the end of the article and before the bibliographic references.

Bibliographic references: will be incorporated at the end of the article, under the title BIBLIOGRAPHIC REFERENCES. A minimum of 20 references is recommended and should be cited in the body of the article. The ISO 690 and ISO 690-2 formats will be used and they will be ordered alphabetically by the authors' last names.
